Clothing textures are the structure of interwoven fabrics or threads that make up a textile fabric. A garment's texture relies on the visual and tactile qualities of its surface, and is easily identified by touch. There are many different types of fabrics and textures used to create modern clothing.

Hi, I have two dresses that I recently purchased and I'm having problems dating the fabrics. Both are, I believe, made of silk brocades. One was remade between 1870 and 1890 (label), but from some other construction techniques (reeds along the front edges and handsewn/covered eyelet holes), I believe that the dress was originally made earlier.
